RAILWAY COMMISSIONERS. Proceedings of the Second Day's Session of the Convention. The second day's session of the sixth an-

was opened today at the rooms of the interstate commerce commission by taking up the unfinished busir ess, namely, the report of the committee on pooling of freights and division of earnings. The following resolution, offered by Mr. Seymour as a substitute for the resolution appended to the minority report, was adopted: "Resolved. That it is the sense of this convertion that competing carriers may safely be permitted to make lawful contracts with each other for the apportion-ment of competitive traffic or the earnings therefrom, provided that conditions and re-strictions be imposed which protect the pub-lic from excessive and unreasonable charges."

The report of the committee on uniform classification of freights was read and adopted. The report recommends that Congress enact a law requiring the different carriers throughout the United States to adopt a uniform classification of freights within a time to be fixed by the act, in default thereof that such classification be made by the interstate commerce commission. made by the interstate commerce commis-sion or a special commissioner provided for that purpose, giving notice to each carrier and an opportunity to be heard before said classification becomes operative. The report provides for the appointment of a commit-tee to draft such an act and to confer with the representatives of the different asso-

A paper was presented by Mr. Peabody of the Railway Review, which discussed a scientific basis for making of carriers' rate schedules. He favored the expression of the schedules. He favored the expression of the transportation relation of the thousands of articles offered for coinage by the use of percentages, while the varying conditions and conflicting interests of the various sections of the country may be accommodated by the grouping of all articles into what may be talled generic groups. Use of Shippers' Cars.

A report of the committee on abuse caused by the use of shippers' cars in railway equipment was presented by Mr. Isaac B. Brown, in which the conclusion is reached in favor of "the passage of an amendment to the act to regulate interstate commerce embodying the principle contained in the Pennsylvania constitution, wherein every officer, director, agent, or employe of a railway company is prohibited from holding any interest, directly or indirectly, in any equipment used on such railroads other than that belonging to common carriers; and in addition, so adjust the rates return on the investment made in such cars. Should such legislation as suggested be in effectual, then the prohibiting of the use of any but common carriers' cars in the transportation of interstate commerce would seem to be a necessity."

The report was adopted.

The report of the committee on railway statistics, which discussed the classification statistics, which discursed the classification of freight earnings and operating expenses, was also presented and considered.

At 1 o'clock the delegates proceeded to the White House, where they were received by the President. A final adjournment is expected today.

THE STATISTICAL SOCIETY.

Interesting Papers Read and Discussed at Last Night's Meeting. The regular monthly meeting of the Naional Statistical Society, held last evening in the board of trade rooms, Glover building, was of unusual interest. The first speaker was Judge William Lawrence of Ohio, vice president of the association. His subject was how to employ statistics in ascertaining the economic policies adapted to nations, and free trade and protection in the abstract and in the concrete. Judge Lawrence maintained that the policy of free trade or protection must depend on conditions which differ in different naon conditions which differ in different na-tions, for a system adapted to one nation may not be suited to another. He reviewed some of the conclusions of Mr. Worthing-ton C. Ford, chief of the bureau of statis-tics, Treasury Department, on wool and woolen manufactures for the purpose of showing them to be erroneous. A number of statistics were cited by the speaker to illustrate the operation of the Walker tariff of 1846 on manufactures, commerce, gold exports, and reviewing the financial panic oretical political policies cannot be relied on unless supported by statistics of their operation considered in the light of exist-ing conditions. Measrs. F. H. Wines and Joseph Nimmo, jr., later discussed the Public Financial Reports. A paper on public financial reports was next read by Mr. J. K. Upton, special agent of the census bureau. Mr. Upton stated that within the last four years he had officially examined the financial reports of every foreign nation of any importance, and many of the reports of their cities and other local governments. He had also exother local governments. He had also examined and compiled the reports of our national government for the last decade, and also those of the state governments for the same period, as well as all the county, municipal and school reports for 1820, issued in the United States, numbering a bout3, 600. Mr. Upton regretted to say that with the exception of the financial report issued by the Secretary of the Treasury and that of the kingdom of Greece, there was not one in the entire number from which the reader dould ascertain without more or less investigation whether, on the whole, the revestigation whether, on the whole, the re-celpts for the period in question were equal to the expenditures.

The speaker showed the chaos into which municipal accounts have fallen and how lit-The speaker showed the chaos into which municipal accounts have fallen and how intelle is known about them, yet their revenue exceeded that of the general government. With great care and labor, these reports have been sifted and analyzed, and in the near future will be published, together with the state and county transactions, the total showing that, notwithstanding the interest taken in the tariff, the receipts from that source are not one-fourth of the entire revenues of all the governments in the United States, the taxes levied on real and personal property being of themselves double the amount received from customs.

Mr. Upton expressed the hope that some scheme will be developed to bring more fully to notice the fact that the local receipts and expenditures are of far more importance than those of the general government. A general discussion by the members followed.

On the Communications.

On the Consular Service. Major Charles H. Hill, national secretary, then talked on the consular service of the United States, its uses, abuses and reform in relation to industries and commerce. He divided his argument into three heads, a review of the past and present provisions and conditions of the service and its uses, and conditions of the service and its uses, a comparison of our own consular service with that of other nations and by endeavoring to find an improved system, and by what legislative action we may remely existing evil, and perfect the service for the development of home industry and forcign commerce.

'Mr. Hill closed his address with an appeal ta Congress for the creation of a consular tribunal to supervise this most important national and international service, and urged that the corps be made permanand urged that the corps be made perman and urged that the corps be made perman-ent in its appointments so long as the efficiency of the consul continued, and that such appointments be taken out of political jurisdiction entirely. A department of commerce was also urged and the identifi-cation of the consul and our commerce as one and inseparable was very happily proven.

Before adjournment a resolution to present copies of the addresses to the com-mittee on foreign affairs of the Senate and mittee on foreign affairs of the Senate and House of Representatives was passed. At the next monthly meeting, on June 12, papers will be read by John Tracey, on "Charities of the United States as compared with those of other countries;" Jos. Nimmo, jr., on "Statistics of internal commerce," and Prof. H. King, on "Tariff reform based upon statistical data."

To New York by Inland Waterway. The torpedo boat Cushing, which sailed from here for Newport yesterday, has chosen an unusual route. She will go through Chesapcake bay, across to Delaware bay via the Chesapeake and Delaware canal fourteen miles, and from Delaware bay via the Delaware and Raritan canal forty-four miles into the Atiantic near New York. The purpose is to demonstrate the feasibility of thus transferring torpedo boats from one point to another on the the interior waterway system, which means of communication would be of great stra-tegic value in case of war and the presence of a hostile fleet off the coast.

Vaccine Points.

Many requests for vaccine points are be ing made at the health office, but the points are not distributed free of charge. They are sold at 10 cents each. In cases of persons, who are too poor to purchase the points, or have a doctor vaccinate their children, they are referred to the physicians to the poor, who will furnish the points and do the work.

SOME OTHER MISTAKES. If You See It in the Record It is Not Always So.

Notwithstanding the serious error made by the executive clerks of the Senate last Thursday, whereby Mr. Charles H. T. Taylor's name was erroneously printed among the confirmations on Friday morning, there has been no change in their system yet. They still give the stenographer's clerk, whose duty it is to make the copy for the Record, all of his information in a sheet of numbers, and on Saturday afternoon this sheet contained another mistake, which would have led to an erroneous publication had it not been for his care and patience in discovery the right number. The list on Saturday contained the number 1653 twice, owing to an error, whereby the figure 6 was set down instead of the figure 7. As the executive clerks of the Senate The executive clerks of the Senate make it a practice to leave the building almost immediately after adjournment, there is no possibility of verifying the numbers which they furnish, either to the stenographers or to the press, without resorting to the telephone, and in many cases to messengers to hunt up the clerks and correct errors. When the Senate, by resolution; some five years ago, decided to publish the names of persons nominated and lish the names of persons nominated and confirmed and rejected in the Congressional Record, it was the intention that this copy should be furnished to the printer by the should be furnished to the printer by the executive clerks, whose business it is not executive clerks, whose business it is not only to attend the executive sessions, but to see to the detail of notifying the President, and who are therefore perfectly familiar with all the features of each case. As an accommodation to these clerks, however, the stenographers of the Benate, who furnish all the other copy to the printers, agreed to send this information down to the printing office for them. Thus sprang up the system of number, by which the executive clerks indicate confirmations and rejections to the clerks of the stenographer's office. The mistakes in numbers have been quite numerous, but in almost every instance the clerks of the stenographer's instance the clerks of the stenographer's office have been alert enough to ramedy these mistakes before publication. The case. of Mr. Taylor is a notable exception. Not many months ago it happened that a man many months ago it happened that a man whose nomination had not been considered read in the Congressional Record, of his confirmation. He was then living in Maine and immediately hastened to Washington to take the oath of office. The State Department, upon his application for his commission, telephoned to the Capitol, and thus the mistake was discovered. The error in that case was one of blanking the numbers, and the man from Malhe was put to a great expense to no purpose. Only numbers, and the man from Malhe was put to a great expense to he purpose. Only a few weeks ago the daily list of numbers contained a figure which made it appear that Mr. Long, nominated for a Florida office, had been confirmed by the Senate. The stenographer's clerk happened to know, through gossip that had reached his ears, that Long had been rejected, and verified the fact by dint of ah hour's industrious telephoning. He thus saved the Record from a mistake. telephoning. H

> CAPITOL TOPICS. Additional Estimates.

Secretary Carlisle has submitted to the House a request for an increase of the force at the subtreasuries at Chicago, St. Louis and New Orleans, as follows: Chicago, four extra men at $5,400; New Orleans, two at $2,400; St. Louis, four at $3,600. He has also sent to the House a recommendation that the sundry civil bill be amended to allow $4,000 for protecting the salmon To Pension Life-Savers.

Some attention will soon be given by the House committee on pensions to the Cummings bill, granting pensions to certain persons in the life-saving service. Various efforts have been made to get favorable lar to that now before the committee, which received a favorable report in the Fiftieth Congress, proposed to place on the pension roll the names of those honorably discharged superintendents, keepers and surfmen of the service who became disabled by disease or injury incurred in the actual performance of their duties in the service and incident thereto. It also provides for pensions while it might be the committee, which is the service in the Fiftieth they would find a redress for any of their grievances by participating in the Coxey movement? The conduct of the District laws as to their they would find a redress for any of their grievances by participating in the Coxey movement? Does he want some pretext upon which to shoot down the colored man and drag him into court?"

To Abolish Customs Ports. Chairman Barwig of the House committee on expenditures in the Treasury Department is awaiting further information from the department before again calling his committee together to consider the bill for the abolishment of various customs ports throughout the country. Evidences of opposition to the bill by members whose constituencies will be affected thereby have already begun to manifest themselves. They will be given an opportunity to be heard before final action is taken. Treasury officials have given their approval to the measure, so it is altogether probable that the committee will take favorable action

THE AFFAIR COMPLICATED.

Action on the Printing Office Site Will Delay Any Result. The House yesterday, as stated in The Star, recommitted the printing office bill to the committee on public buildings and grounds, with instructions to report a bill providing for a site on land now owned by the United States. This action, it is said, will further complicate matters and delay action toward providing adequate and safe quarters for the printing office. It is thought that the Senate will not agree to any plan which calls for the occupancy of the city parks, as it is on record as opposed to this kind of proposition. Those persons who are urging immediate action are afraid that in the struggle between the two legislative bodies which is to come over this phase of the question serious, if not fatal, delay will ensue in the selection of a site and erection of a building ensue in the selection of a site and erection of a building.

The motion to recommit the bill was made by Mr. Bankhead, and was rendered necessary by the adoption of the amendment providing for a site on a public reservation. This amendment changed the whole aspect of the bill, rendering nugatory many of the sections of the measure as it then stood. Mr. Bankhead explained that it would be necessary for the committee will select a site and bring in a bill with the selection named.

Must Accept Mail at the Cars. The Post Office Department has sent to all railway mail service employes circulars calling attention to the postal regulations requiring postal clerks to accept all prepaid mail matter offered them at their cars and to forward it to its destination. Inquiries have been received at the department from almost every section of the country, indi-cating a general misunderstanding, due, it is stated, to the publication of a number of articles incorrectly intimating that the section of the regulations making the obliga-tion has been repealed. The rule is declared to be still in force, and refusal to comply will render clerks liable to dismissal, unless special authority has been given.
